City gets moving on LRT leg

Revised plan to bury west line at 31 Street tags $20M onto price

By NEIL MACKINNON
Metro Calgary

It's being trumpeted as a compromise; a positive step in the right direction.

The city revised the West Leg LRT plan yesterday, an alteration which would see track running down Bow Trail from 19 Street to 31 Street, where it would head underground.

It reduces the length of elevated track but also would require rebuilding the roadway along the route while increasing construction time and cost of the project, initially pegged at $700 million, by roughly $20 million. The added cost is less than a plan proposed by Sunalta-Scarboro residents to bury the line at spots, coming in at $150 million, said

Mayor Dave Bronconnier.

"The added expenditure is certainly worthy of council's consideration as it speaks directly to our openness to working with the communities affected," he said of the revision, which still has to be approved by council. "But it's a major piece of infrastructure and like all major projects, there are elements of inconvenience, this one isn't immune to that."

Best West LRT's Peter Rishaug said while the new plan is a "positive move" and may alleviate some concerns from residents worried about a loss of privacy from elevated lines staring into their backyards, he's still waiting for the social, economic, environmental and sustainability reports promised by council more than a month ago to be done before he draws any serious conclusions.

"We're entirely supportive of the West LRT, we want it in our communities, we want discussion and we don't want to slow it down any more than is necessary for the proper, fiscally responsible work to be done," he said, noting he hasn't seen plans for the revision other than a line on a map. neil.mackinnon@metronews.ca

Starker remembered

Strangers' support helps family of fallen medic

By KRISTA SYLVESTER
Metro Calgary

The family of a local medic and reservist killed last week in Afghanistan is thankful for the outpouring of support from across the country.

Widow Nicole Starker and sister Carolyn Straub both spoke of 36-year-old Michael Starker yesterday with warm thoughts and were thankful for the kind words of strangers.

"The whole family has been strong for each other ... but the overwhelming support of Calgarians and Canadians has been overwhelming," Starker told reporters.

Starker and Straub remembered their fallen hero yesterday not with tears but with fond memories and sporadic smiles.

"He was a great man, a great husband, a great brother ... even though he was my little brother, I looked up to him and admired him ... he liked to tease me," his sister said. "It's affected our family deeply. No parents should have to bury their child."

Starker was remembered as the kind of guy who could walk into a room of strangers and walk out with many new friends, his sister added.

Perhaps most telling of the Starker family strength was the poise in which his widow and sister took the podium for reporters.

"I support Canada as a peacekeeping nation and what happened to Mike hasn't changed that for me," Starker told reporters.

The public funeral for the fallen soldier is Friday at 2 p.m. with the procession starting at the city hall and ending at the Roundup Centre.

A 5-ton snow dump

By NEIL MACKINNON
Metro Calgary

It was one of the five most concentrated dumps of snow in Calgary's history.

For the fifth year running, Sunshine Village plopped five tons of snow on Stephen Avenue yesterday, a chilly reminder that while spring is certainly in the air and the grass is greening, the Banff-based ski resort has an abundance of snow still and ski conditions couldn't be better.

"With all the warm weather, seeing people driving around on motorbikes and convertibles, they don't realize there's so much snow still on the mountains," said Sunshine Village's Mike Moynihan.

With AC/DC tribute band BC/DC lined up for free concerts May 17-19 as well as the resort's 80th annual Slush Cup Moynihan hopes Calgarians will keep Sunshine Village in mind when they head out for the May long weekend.

One more ray dies at Calgary Zoo

Latest death brings total to 35

By KRISTA SYLVESTER
Metro Calgary

Another stingray died yesterday and two more remain under close observation at the Calgary Zoo.

Zoo spokesperson Laurie Herron told Metro the ray keeper was concerned about one of the nine remaining rays, and unfortunately it wasn't able to recover. The latest death brings the toll to 35.

"He said there are two other rays that may not make it. They aren't doing too well," the somber Herron said.

Water results were expected back last night, but Herron and the zoo believe there was a sudden and toxic change in the water.

"Whether it was deliberate or accidental, we don't know yet, but we know there was a sudden change in the water climate to kill that many rays so suddenly."

The majority of the zoo's rays started acting erratically on Sunday and within two hours 26 of them had died, with another eight dying on Monday.

The toxicology results aren't expected back for two weeks.

Urology centre kickoff

Legendary doctor on hand to launch funding campaign

By KRISTA SYLVESTER
Metro Calgary

There was a clown nose and some fake teeth, but yesterday's announcement of Calgary's newest health facility is no laughing matter.

The legendary and endearingly memorable doctor Patch Adams was on hand as the Calgary Health Region launched the funding campaign for the Southern Alberta Institute of Urology, to be located at the Rockyview Hospital.

"I was going to give prostate exams, but they wouldn't let me," the eccentric doctor joked

as he donned red clown noses and fake teeth.

The real announcement was that of the new facility, which will become Canada's most comprehensive urology centre, catering to urological conditions such as prostate and kidney cancers.

"Urological problems can touch many Albertans and this facility will provide citizens with the urgent and critical care they need," CHR chief medical officer Dr. David Megran told Metro.

According to Megran, 2,400 men are affected with prostate cancer in Alberta annually and eight die from the disease each week.

Lead donors, and prostate cancer survivors, Daryl K. Seaman and W. Brett Wilson both contributed $5 million each towards the $28-million facility. A total of $19 million has been raised to date.

"No one likes to talk about what goes on below the belt, but keeping these issues in the dark can be fatal," Wilson said.

Fuel prices pilfer city coffers

By NEIL MACKINNON
Metro Calgary

As gas prices inch higher, it's not only commuters being left with deflated wallets.

The City of Calgary, whose emergency services vehicles, transit and road crews guzzle back an average of 37-million litres a year, will see at least a $5-million budget shortfall this year due to rising petrol costs, which have soared 13 cents since this time last year.

Still, while the cash crunch emanating from the pumps

«Regardless of the price of gas, we're still going to flex around the city and transport our patients.»

Calgary EMS's Paul Lapointe

may drive the city into its chequing-account overdraft, it's an unavoidable reality, especially for the city's EMS who rely almost solely on ground transport to save lives.

"Regardless of the price of gas, we're still going to flex around the city and transport our patients," said Calgary EMS's Paul Lapointe. "Sure, from our end, we are concerned about the environment, we are concerned about the price of gas, but the well-being of our patients is our top priority."

Lapointe wasn't sure how much EMS does out on fuel each year, but noted that, unless it's an extremely busy day, a policy requires fuel levels be kept at half "to make sure we can always make it where we need to be."

Grant helps students enter child care field

$2,500 scholarship through class at two high schools

By ALICIA FOX

eligibility

» Students who have taken the class through which the grant is being offered in past years can also apply.

A specific high school class will now make a student eligible for a scholarship worth up to $2,500 — an incentive the government is now offering for those going into child care work after last Friday's children's services funding announcement.

That class, appropriately named child care, is being offered at just two of Calgary's high schools — Jack James High School and Sir William Van Horne.

"Quite honestly, I don't know why they don't offer it in any high school ... usually the problem is space," said Pam Blake, who runs the course at Jack James school.

She says the grant would be great incentive for these kids to go on to post-secondary institutions since money is often an issue.

Dawn Delaney, communications manager for Calgary Child and Family Services, said the scholarship has very few stipulations except that the student must sign a return-service agreement depending on the amount of money they receive.

Crash kills 4

Helicopter goes down in Cranbrook neighbourhood

A pedestrian was among four people killed when a helicopter crashed into a residential neighbourhood in Cranbrook, B.C., yesterday.

The helicopter with three people on board appeared to hover as if looking for a landing spot before it crashed onto a street and burst into flames, according to officials and witnesses.

Witnesses told local media the pedestrian appeared to have been dragged by the helicopter as it crashed to the ground, and bypassers attempted to pull the person from the flames but failed.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known, but the weather conditions were described as good.

The Bell 206 helicopter was working under contract for BC Hydro, the provincial electrical utility, according to the Transportation Safety Board, which was sending investigators to the community about 200 km southwest of Calgary.

Sweet tooth, gene linked

If you have a sweet tooth, it won't be found amongst your molars or canines. It's inserted in your DNA instead.

Cake and cola and cookie lovers may well be able to blame their cravings on a common variant of a gene that controls the brain's ability to sense sugars in the body, a new University of Toronto study suggests. About one in five people has the variant.

The gene may also have implications for a person's risk of getting diabetes. People with the variant of the gene GLUT 2 consistently ate more sweets and drank more high-calorie drinks than those with the more common form of it, the study published today in the journal Physiological Genomics found.

Death toll hits 13,000

Chinese officials fear the worst as 60,000 missing

The death toll in China's earthquake climbed past 13,000 yesterday and looked set to rise much higher after media said some 19,000 people were buried in rubble in just one area.

Rain and severed roads hampered rescuers in the mountainous area near the epicentre of Monday's 7.9-magnitude quake in the southwestern province of Sichuan, China's worst earthquake in three decades.

State media reported devastation as troops reached stricken villages near the epicentre in Wenchuan, a remote county cut off by landslides about 100 km northwest of the provincial capital, Chengdu.

Officials have said more powerful aftershocks could hit the region and mudslides may add to the toll where 60,000 people were unaccounted for.

60 killed as bombs rip through city in India

Seven bombs ripped through the crowded streets of India's western city of Jaipur yesterday evening, killing around 60 people in markets and outside Hindu temples.

The bombs, many strapped to bicycles, exploded within minutes of each other in Jaipur's pink walled city, a magnet for foreign tourists.

It was the deadliest bomb attack in India in nearly two years. Around 150 people were wounded and local television stations broadcast appeals for blood donations.

Police officers said no group had admitted responsibility for the blasts. Television channels quoted government and intelligence officials as blaming Pakistani or Bangladeshi Islamist militant groups.

"According to the information I have received 60 people have died and 150 have been injured," Rajasthan's chief minister Vasundhara Raje said.

Officials said the apparent motive for the bombs was to undermine a peace process between India and Pakistan or foment communal violence in India.

Enbridge, Canada's No. 2 pipeline firm, said Ottawa's

Expert dispels maple myths

Baseball's Battle of Bats starts next week.

That's when major-league executives will formally ask players to stop stepping to the plate with maple bats. The execs will ask them to use ash bats instead.

The requests, of course, will be denied by the players' association since nearly half the hitters in MLB — including the Blue Jays' Vernon Wells — prefer maple. It's been this way since Ottawa manufacturer Sam Holman first introduced maple bats to sluggers such as Joe Carter and Barry Bonds late last decade. Many feel maple bats are harder than ash bats and enhance their power and hitting abilities.

As reported here yesterday, however, MLB wants to abolish maple bats because of concerns that they're shattering too frequently and endangering lives.

What we didn't mention yesterday is that a researcher hired by MLB has found that maple is actually no better for batters than ash.

YORK REPORT
MARTY YORK
marty.york@metronews.ca

"The two woods are essentially the same at batted-ball speeds," said Jim Sherwood of the Baseball Research Centre at the University of Massachusetts. "Maple has no advantage in getting a longer hit over an ash bat."

Sherwood also discovered that, while ash bats crack, maple bats snap, causing sharp-ended barrels to fly often and unpredictably.

Armed with Sherwood's information, MLB will tell the union that safety should come first and that maple bats must go.

"We'll meet on this," union chief Don Fehr acknowledged. "We'll look at it in good faith."

Yeah, right. This is a battle that'll become a war.

» Snicker over this tidbit if you'd like, (although it's really no funnier than the preseason prediction by analyst/homer Rance Mulliniks that the woebegone Jays would win the World Series this year): A source hears manager John Gibbons gets axed soon and replaced by — brace yourself — ex-skipper Cito Gaston, who'll try to pass on his hitting wisdom ... In Florida, the Tampa Bay Rays are for real, for sure, but the Marlins? Not so much. They're winning, granted, but only three of their victories in the season's first quarter were against above-.500 teams, and they're 8-1 against the hapless Washington Nationals ... The Nats were so elated with their 10-4 victory over the Mets Monday that "they were cheerleading in the dugout like a bunch of softball girls," according to New York pitcher Nelson Figueroa.

In three-plus decades as a columnist and broadcaster, Marty York has built a network of solid contacts and a renowned reputation for his hard-hitting, groundbreaking style. The tradition continues in Metro Sports.

No compromise convertible

Mazda MX-5 fun for all seasons

By B. MCLAUCHLAN
for Metro Calgary

Our first thought when we clapped eyes on the tin-top version of the Mazda MX-5 was a very practical one. The heady charms of warm weather open-air motoring are a given, but how will this convertible with a power, folding hardtop fare against the freeze-unfreeze-refreeze of our winter climate? How good will this two-seater really be at keeping its driver and passenger warm?

The answer is very well, as a matter of fact. All the wind-in-your-face fun is still there but even the tail end of one of the harshest winters in recent memory couldn't dampen our enthusiasm for this little charmer.

Mazda has done something quite remarkable with the design of the MX-5 PRHT (Power Retractable Hard Top) by designing a fully powered retractable metal hardtop that stores away into the exact same space that the cloth roof would — without nibbling into precious cargo space. Oh, and the whole shebang only added 40 kg to the MX-5's already slender waistline.

The two-piece top attaches with the same single latch as the standard MX-5's cloth top, and two buttons now flank the emergency flashers on the dash to raise or lower the roof. The procedure is elegant and simple. Fast too, as the whole operation takes about 12 seconds.

The MX-5 is still one of the world's best handling cars; the PRHT simply allows you to enjoy its wonderful attributes and grin-generating dynamics year round.

This brings the ham-handed soft top design of its main market rivals into even sharper focus; the Saturn Sky and its Pontiac Solstice corporate cousin still have the most frustrating convertible storage system, a 10-step program of frayed nerves, pinched fingers and silent curses.

Back to the MX-5 ... the good news is that the PRHT treatment is available right across the model range, from the base GX ($28,195) through the GS ($31,350) to the top-level GT ($34,500). The better news is that it costs a very reasonable $2,195 — a lot less than a good winter beater, safety inspection and extra insurance.

Plus, the PRHT adds some nice visual touches like chrome on the headlight bezels, front grille surround and the outer door handles.

Two buttons now flank the emergency flashers on the dash to raise or lower the roof.

On the road, the PRHT is a pure joy to drive. Power is good but not overwhelming. Handling is exceptional, the engine loves to be revved and the short-throw shifter is a pleasure to guide through the gears.

Rating Rogue

Driving event puts compact crossover to test

Six Canadian couples, representative of the new Nissan Rogue's target market, experienced what professional auto writers take for granted recently, when they were invited to drive the compact crossover and give their impressions of it.

Their 'Rogue Weekend' began with an advanced driving course at the PMG Technologies skidpad near Montréal, and concluded with an extensive two-day test drive to Ottawa over a variety of back roads and highways in real winter conditions.

It began to snow as the group arrived at PMG Technologies where they were met by professional racing driver-turned-instructor, Guy Lahaie of Trois Rivières, Que.

Lahaie's mission: To teach the group advanced driving skills with the focus on skid control, proper use of the anti-lock braking system, and collision avoidance techniques.

As the snowfall intensified, the drivers took turns through the various courses and with each consecutive pass, their confidence and skill levels rose.

From Blainville, the group motored to Château Montebello where they anticipated a challenging drive to Ottawa the next morning through spectacular Laurentian Mountains scenery.

Sean Kavanaugh of Burlington, Ont., liked the steering wheel's wide range of position settings, large print and easily identifiable switches and controls, while his wife, Allison, especially liked the heated seats and seatbacks.

Six-foot tall Ally Isted, also of Burlington, found entering and exiting the vehicle "extremely easy."

Everything important was easily within reach for Eva Choe of Toronto, who liked the seat warmers and the large, round knobs for the heating and air conditioning.

All around visibility was "quite good," said Mat Rodriguez, though the view directly rearward was restricted by the "smallish back window," a point noted by more than half of the drivers.

Tammy Chan found the brakes quick to respond, and weren't too touchy. "The steering wheel felt like a true extension of my arms," she said.

Oscar Valencia, who moved to Canada from Colombia nine years ago, noted that a big part of driving in Canada "is doing it in snowy conditions, and this car responded perfectly."

In the end, the Rogue received high marks all around, with 75 per cent of the drivers saying it exceeded their expectations, and the remaining quarter saying it met theirs.

Thirty-three per cent (four drivers) rated the Rogue as "excellent" value for money and 50 per cent viewed it as "above average." Two drivers called it "good" value.

FROM THE EDITORS OF CARGUIDE

Q&A with Nissan Canada president, Mark Grimm

» CARGUIDE: What sets the new Nissan Rogue apart from the small crossover-utility segment?
MARK GRIMM: Rogue answers consumers' demands for an expressively styled, small crossover that offers the utility they need and value they require. It looks and feels like a premium vehicle, yet Rogue's low price and high fuel efficiency make it affordable to buy and inexpensive to operate. Rogue's combination of style, versatile utility and on-road performance make it a superior choice.
 » CG: What are the vehicle's main selling points?
MG: The Rogue's exterior was designed to present an image of modern sophistication ... With its driver-focused cockpit, combined with state of the art technology, like intuitive All-Wheel Drive, Xtronic CVT, Bluetooth hands-free phone system and paddle shifters, it will shift the way customers think about small crossovers.

Condo fees: What should you expect?

All developments are not created equal

By DARREN KRAUSE
Metro Calgary

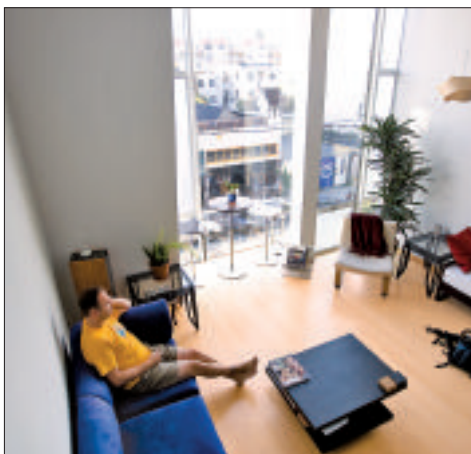

You have a love/hate relationship with them. On one hand they are an expense over and above your regular mortgage or rent. But, they do provide you with a certain amount of luxury: Snow-free sidewalks, yard maintenance, maybe even heated parking — and it creates a pool of money for maintenance, so you don't necessarily have to fund major repairs on your own.

That's right. We're talking about the condo fee. But it's important to dispel the common myth that there is a 'reasonable' amount for such fees. According to Sandra Johnston of Insight Condo Services Inc. in Calgary, comparing condo fees from one complex to the next is virtually impossible — all developments are not created equal. "There is no norm," said Johnston, noting that everything from the type of siding to roofing and the age of a building are all factors that determine a condo-fee. "It will depend on all of the maintainable items each condominium has."

It makes sense, too.

Condo fees differ from place to place because the determined cost is relative to the amount of maintenance required and any projected repair or replacement costs.

Know what you are paying for with your condo fees.

For example, it costs less to maintain a brick exterior than it does a wood exterior that has been painted. Older buildings could have future upgrades too.

In some cases, Johnston said, you can expect certain things from your fees. She said, for example, fees for apartment-style condo should include heating, water, sewage and common property insurance. It will also likely include administration fees, legal fees and the cost to have an annual audit done.

You will also see the condo complex reserve fund — set up to defray the cost of major renovations.

"It important to always have enough money to complete the work that needs to be done," said Johnston, noting that condo boards don't want to apply a special assessment to condo owners for repairs unless they have to. Johnston underscores the importance for condo-buyers to do their homework prior to making a purchase.

Asking for company financials, budgets and future repair or maintenance schedules of the condo complex is critical. This may give you clues to the operation of the condominium corporation.

"It just makes sense. In order to protect your investment you really need to do your homework."

doing your homework

- » Ask for financials of your condo company.
- » Find out what their reserve fund is at.
- » Ask if there are any pending maintenance or upgrading plans.
- » Ask for an audited statement to find out where reserve money has been spent in the past.
- » Determine what services are reasonable to expect in the condo fee.

Calgary a leader in green

By KRISTA SYLVESTER
Metro Calgary

Going 'green' in the city has never been hipper, but soon home buyers won't have a choice.

Calgary is a leader in environmental condos and homes, according to the Built Green Society in Canada (BGSC), and they continue to set the pace for the rest of the country.

"Calgary was the first major city in North America to offer building permits rebates to builders offering green initiatives," BGSC spokesperson Holly Chabidon told Metro. "It's really cool." Chabidon said though it is more of a push from the industry which is heavily supported by all levels of government.

"Consumers don't really have a choice. I think it's been a big push to have green-friendly homes and condos because the builders really believe in them but not so much because consumers asked for them."

She said one of the biggest green supporters in the city is Jayman, who according to the BDSC website has more than 3000 green friendly homes and condos registered.

"It's just so important, actually it's essential. Calgary is a great city and everyone has taken the green initiative very seriously, and it shows," Chabidon said.

Dave MacKillop, manager of the Alastair Ross Technology Centre told Metro while Calgarians are open to the idea of green roofs and buildings, the job isn't done yet.

"By no stretch is Calgarians' interest a landslide, but the momentum is there and the interest is growing," he said.

MacKillop said an important partnership with the Calgary Zoo coming up in June might help garner the interest needed.

The Alberta Prairie Green Roof Conference and Tour takes place on the weekend of June 9th and the zoo will host the informative event.

"We are definitely in a place right now where green buildings are important, and green roofs are a part of that. We just have to keep it going."

Torode Realty even designed a green rooftop patio for their three-tower condo development ArriVa, in Victoria Park.

De-cluttering means de-stressing

Do you often spend hours looking for things? Have you ever discovered a box full of items that you haven't looked at, or needed, in years?

Do you avoid certain dark corners of your home or garage because you just can't deal with the mess?

Are you moving in the next few weeks and want to avoid moving carloads of stuff you don't need?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, don't stress out, the steps below will help you reach junk-free nirvana.

sort, separate and store

The first step is the most difficult and time-consuming — sort through the mess and separate it into three categories: Stuff you don't need anymore, junk you never needed in the first place and useful items that you forgot you had.

give useful items a home

Now that you know what items you want to keep, store them in suitable containers that you've clearly marked with a label. This is where a good electronic labeller comes in. Electronic label makers date back almost 20 years to when Brother introduced their popular P-touch brand. Today, they can be purchased in most office supplies stores, or online at places like www.brother.ca. "We encourage our customers to use colour coding to organize multiple storage boxes," says Marc Ruel, product specialist at Brother Canada. "It may seem strange, but they report that they get addicted to their labellers." However you do it, creating a system that works for you will make it that much easier to stick to.

So now that you know what you've got, where are you going to put it?

Resist the temptation to put all those boxes back in the same shelf in the garage; give them proper homes instead. The best way to determine where something should go is to put it near similar items. Stray tools go near screws, bolts and hardware. Gardening gloves and tools go near seed leftovers and bulbs. Camping gear? Meet fishing gear.

If you're like most people, you'll be left with all sorts of things you just don't need. Now's the time to join forces with your neighbours and have that massive garage sale you've been putting off for years. An electronic labeller will come in handy here too.

donate what you don't need

With so many items for sale, buyers will appreciate that your items are all clearly price-tagged — negotiable of course.

Everything that is left over goes to the Salvation Army or your local thrift shop.

Nothing against yoga, massage or long walks in the park, but if you really want to de-stress, de-clutter: Nothing clears the mind like clearing the pile of junk that's accumulated in your cupboard.

Market begins to cool

Price wane makes it a buyer's market

It's official. The hot real estate market Calgary enjoyed for so long is losing momentum.

While the days of prosperity are certainly not over, the scramble for the precious commodity known as a single-family dwelling is cooling down and prices are no longer seeing the drastic hikes that they saw two years ago.

According to a new report released by Statistics

Canada on Monday, housing prices across Canada rose only 0.2 per cent in the year-over-year analysis between February and March, mostly due to the prices waning in Alberta.

Between March 2007 and March 2008, Calgary's housing market prices rose 5.3 per cent, just slightly higher than the rise between February 2007 and February 2008, which hit 5.2 per cent.

Not only are the prices coming down, but availability is going up, which makes the market much more favourable for buyers than it has been for the past few years.

Although Alberta in general is still seeing increases in housing market values, those increases are also less than the province of such promise was seeing.

Saskatchewan and Manitoba, on the other hand, are experiencing the same sort of boom Alberta saw in recent years.

For the 11th month in a row, Saskatoon saw the highest increase in housing prices, packing on a 46.2 per cent year-over-year increase in last March and 2.1 per cent between Feb. and March.

Old English town held reins to industry in 1800s

If you have ever wondered what it would have been like to live in Britain during the Industrial Revolution, then visit Blists Hill Victorian Town in Shropshire, England.

You can truly step back in time at Blists Hill. It's just one of nine museums in the Ironbridge area — including the Jackfield Tile Museum, Coalport China Museum, Museum of Iron and the Iron Bridge itself, the world's first cast iron bridge, built in 1779 over the River Severn — that showcase the best of the birthplace of the Industrial Revolution. Located in the heart of England, the area is considered so historically important that it is now a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Each building in the Victorian town dates from the 1800s and has been carefully transported to the village and reconstructed brick by brick to recreate a small industrial town toward the end of Queen Victoria's reign.

Guides in costume and in character breathe life into these immaculately recreated shops, workplaces and homes, offering an astounding insight into what life was like more than 100 years ago.

Turn your pounds into shillings in the Victorian Lloyds bank and leave contemporary England behind. Treat yourself to a bag of candy from the sweet shop, buy some freshly baked bread and see what's on offer in the grocers, chemist, candle makers and printers for all your turn of the century needs.

At lunchtime, you can send your children off to the school, where they will be taught a lesson, Victorian-style, with chalk and blackboard, by a strict and smartly-dressed head teacher. Meanwhile, you can nip off for a pint of traditional ale in the wood-panelled Victorian pub, where the locals gather round the piano for an old-fashioned singalong.

If you want you can even be Victorian and actively participate in the experience. Enrol in the blacksmithing course — the wrought iron works at Blists Hill is the only working iron foundry in Europe — and you'll be taught how to heat iron and steel until it is white hot before hammering it into shape on the anvil. Using traditional blacksmithing skills you'll be taught how to make objects including a fire poker, leaf key ring and coat hook.

Despite the hard labour, it's a course people find creative, inspiring and rewarding. As most of us urban types don't actually get to make anything after school age — we just buy things then throw them away — most people find it satisfying to put time into producing something useful and durable in the blacksmithing course.

Volunteer on vacation

Voluntourism gives foreigners a chance to help

In our world of beaten-track travel, many tourists are looking for alternative holiday experiences where they can learn about local culture while giving back. “Voluntourism,” as it is now known, is a growing trend that blends volunteer work with travel. It's a chance for foreigners to pitch in, get their hands dirty and help the local community while on holiday.

No matter what your interest, there are volunteer opportunities in all parts of the world. From environmental protection to animal rights, archeological digs to organic farming, there's something for everyone.

Here are a few interesting opportunities to earn some Karma credits:

COMMUNITY CARE

Global Volunteers is a non-profit, non-religious organization specializing in short-term volunteer placements across 21 countries. Anyone can participate in their projects, regardless of skill or profession. Care for orphaned children in Romania, build playgrounds in Jamaica, help the elderly in the Cook Islands or work on an organic coffee co-operative in Costa Rica. Visit www.globalvolunteers.org.

ANIMAL AID

PRETOMA, a non-governmental organization (NGO), offers volunteer placements aimed at protecting endangered sea turtles. From June to December, along the Pacific Coast of Costa Rica, tourists can take part in hands-on conservation programs that monitor and secure turtle nesting beaches. Prices range from $330 a week to $970 a month (they recommend at least two weeks), with accommodations in cabins, hotels or homestays. Visit www.tortugamarina.org

HANDS-ON

Grab your hammer and tool belt! Habitat for Humanity's “global village” program has volunteers labouring to build affordable housing for disadvantaged people around the world. Teams of volunteers are sent on trips of one to three weeks long. Fees (which include food, accommodation and ground transportation) vary according to location. From Paraguay to Tajikistan, Cambodia to our own Canadian back yards, this non-profit initiative is creating change, one nail at a time. Apply for upcoming trips online at www.habitat.ca.

CULTURAL EXPERIENCE

Offering experiences from two to 12 weeks, Cross-Cultural Solutions places volunteers in a variety of programs: Promote female empowerment in rural Tanzania, work with kids in Morocco or teach English in China. According to their website, their philosophy of sustainability ensures that 90 per cent of the fees go to the volunteer program, not to exorbitant overhead costs. - » Guy Hobbs, author of Hands-On Holidays (a comprehensive guide book to volunteer opportunities) offers the following advice:
- » When you're deciding between organizations, be sure to get a personal recommendation. An organization that is sure of the quality of its projects will willingly put you in touch with former participants for the real low-down on what life is like at the project.
- » Try to seek out organizations that work with just a few partners. Those that offer hundreds of placements in many countries are unlikely to have visited and vetted every single project.

Incredible, breathtaking, majestic. These are the words used by passengers to describe the Skeena — VIA Rail's unique rail adventure across the Rockies and the coastal range in north-central B.C.

"There are more mountains and wildlife to see on this route than any other route in Canada," said Macaraeg.

Bye-bye bachelorhood

Grant's fiancée wins him over by being herself

By SANDY CAETANO
for Metro Calgary

The age-old advice of just being yourself certainly worked in the case of Shayne Dahl Lamas.

The 22-year-old actress captured the heart of Matt Grant, the bachelor on The Bachelor: London Calling, and the couple are now engaged.

"She's just so kind and caring and considerate about all her friends and family — she's also very confident and strong herself," said Grant, a global financier from London. "It's quite rare in Britain to have that balance without being arrogant and cocky and full of yourself."

Unlike the last season of The Bachelor, where the man looking for love ended up not choosing anyone, this season's suitor popped the question to his special lady.

Grant proposed to Lamas on Monday night's finale of the reality show with a 2.85-carat Tacori platinum and diamond eternity ring (an estimated value of $60,000 US) — and she said yes.

All throughout The Bachelor: London Calling, Grant, the first-ever British Bachelor, has let the world know he's crazy about American women.

Lamas, the daughter of actor Lorenzo Lamas, proved to Grant she was the real deal by being herself every moment they were together, be it alone or surrounded by the other women vying for a piece of his heart. The 22-year-old actress also endured a dirty and physical game of rugby with the other contestants in the bid to gain his love.

So what was it that caught her eye besides

Grant's looks and charm?

"First of all he's handsome, and if you ever are in his presence his aura and his presence is just unbelievable, he's just amazing," said Lamas. "Just being in the same room with him, I mean his friends even say the same thing — and he's very tall, too (6-foot-5), that's great for short women because they can wear high heels."

The couple plans on travelling a bit, and having homes in Los Angeles and in London, since they each have family in both places.

As for a wedding date, nothing has been set. Grant and Lamas want to spend some time getting to know each other better before tying the knot.

Music saga lands 30 years later

17-part series on musical evolution finally on DVD

By RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Calgary

"You doing anything useful these days?" These were the words that inspired documentary director Tony Palmer to spend two years of his life, travelling all over the world, to make All You Need Is Love, a 17-part series on the history of popular music that's only now arriving on DVD this week, 30 years after it first aired on television.

The words were spoken by John Lennon, an old friend of Palmer's.

"I can still hear his voice saying that," he recalls over the telephone, recalling the struggles to make the series. Palmer — a veteran director who's made films about classical music in addition to 200 Motels, the cult classic feature starring Frank Zappa — ended up capturing dozens of musical giants at their most candid, painting an eyewitness account of the evolution of jazz, blues and pop music over the course of a long century only three-quarters finished.

"When I look at the swing episode, that was the only long interview Artie Shaw ever gave. Bing Crosby — gone within a few years. Cab Calloway, gone. Frank Sinatra, gone. Benny Goodman, gone. It was really desperate to get around these guys because I knew they had extraordinary stories to tell, and I wanted to get there before they weren't there to tell them."

Director Tony Palmer spent two years of his life travelling all over the world to make All You Need Is Love.

I saw the series when it aired in Canada, for the first time, on TVO, and it ended up being a major inspiration for my decision to become a music critic when I left college.

Even at the time, though, I knew that something was missing from the final episode, which speculated on the future of pop music, and appointed as its heir apparent ... Mike Oldfield, whose 1973 prog rock opus Tubular Bells remains huge, though it's very much a period piece now, especially when you consider what was happening literally on the doorstep of Palmer's editing suite.

"We were aware — we'd had the Sex Pistols running in all directions in London, and I begged EMI and Polygram to put off the finishing of the series so that we could include some of that, but they wouldn't allow me to, they said, 'You've spent quite enough money anyway and we don't know any of this stuff, it's vulgar.' So I had my knuckles rapped was told to finish it and go away."

"In retrospect it was a terrible mistake and we knew it at the time, but it wasn't our money. We couldn't do anything about it really."

The series arrives on DVD with its 17 episodes cleaned up and formatted for widescreen televisions, but without any bonus features, a shortcoming that Palmer blames on penny-pinching by the producers.

"If I've been tempted to commit murder it's this — the film was jointly financed by EMI and Polygram. And some moron in EMI junked all the outtakes. We sat there filming, for example, two hours of our interview with Hoagy Carmichael. And you can't use all of that, so you use five or ten minutes. And the rest this idiot at EMI threw away."

"Can you believe it? This moron was actually on the same plane as us yesterday afternoon coming over to New York. I thought, shall I kill him now? And I thought I'm much too old for that. But I know he was the guy who signed it off."

Mel C sports new sound

Spice Girl tours Canada in support of new solo disc

By IAN NATHANSON
for Metro Calgary

Ask Melanie Chisholm whether she prefers to be a touring Spice Girl or a touring solo artist and the answer might come as some surprise.

"The Spice Girls are so much fun — it's amazing to perform to so many people and be so high-profile. It's what dreams are made of," says the amiable 34-year-old Brit better known as — pick one — Melanie C, Mel C or Sporty Spice.

"But my heart is in my solo work now. I get to do more of what I want to do."

Before last summer's Spice Girls reunion announcement, Melanie C reportedly hesitated at the thought of any reunion. Yet mere months after her fourth studio album, This Time, was issued overseas, there was Chisholm joining her former Girl Power partners Victoria Beckham (Posh Spice), Melanie Brown (Scary Spice), Emma Bunton (Baby Spice) and even Geri Halliwell (Ginger Spice) delivering news of a reunion and subsequent tour, which began in Vancouver last December and wrapped up in Toronto in late February.

"All my fears about getting back together with the girls, about how things would work out on stage ... none of those ever came about," she says. "It was frighteningly easy to slip back into those shoes. I guess because we're all so much older and had taken a step away from it, we really respect and enjoy each other more now than we ever did."

It remains a question mark whether any further Spice Girls performances will materialize. So, for now, Melanie C has downsized from the Spice Girls' arena-sized spectacle — glamorous costume changes, dance routines and all — to just being one singer fronting a band for her tour in support of last month's North American release of This Time.

Melanie C plays MacEwan Conference And Event Centre tomorrow.

"It's odd and does take a while to feel balanced again," Melanie C says of the adjustment. "But overall, playing so many gigs in tinier venues or in festivals makes you a better performer and you become far more confident on stage. That's always been my reason I wanted to be a solo artist."

BRING OUT YOUR DEAD:

The current TV season is ringing down, and like any decent Shakespeare play, the stage is littered with bodies. The networks are trying to lighten the tone of this downbeat little drama by announcing new shows and renewals at the same time, but there's no denying that it's a dismal end to a dispiriting year, and that there are some people (well, just me, probably) who think that they'd do just as well to nuke their whole primetime schedules and start all over again with a kind of broadcast year zero.

Cashmere Mafia, Women's Murder Club and Men In Trees are also among the fallen, as is — cue shock chords — Oprah's Big Give, which was dropped at the request of Oprah Winfrey herself. "We loved that show and absolutely would have loved to bring it back," ABC entertainment president Steve McPherson told the Hollywood Reporter. "But it was something (Oprah) didn't want to do."

The network is taking Scrubs over from NBC, and says they have 17 new pilots in development for midseason launch, which promises to make September on ABC look pretty quiet, but it may turn out that other networks are going to make an equally soft start on the fall TV season. ABC's casualty list is as large as Fox and CBS combined, neither of which contain many surprises, either, except for Fox' axing of Back To You, the newsroom comedy starring Kelsey Grammar and Patricia Heaton.

The series Oprah's Big Give was dropped at the request of Oprah Winfrey herself.

Grammar, it turns out, had to find out about his show's termination from Nikki Finke's L.A. Weekly blog, and posed with an impromptu memorial erected by fans outside Fox's offices, though Finke reported that CBS is rumored to be interested in picking up the show.

Canterbury's Law, New Amsterdam and The Return Of Jezebel James are gone at Fox, while CBS has done a higher profile housecleaning, killing off Jericho — at last — as well as Shark, Moonlight, Cane and Welcome To The Captain, the latter show bearing the not-so-unusual distinction of being a program I've never heard of until now.

NBC has cut Las Vegas and Journeyman from its schedule, and finally confirmed that they can't rebuild Bionic Woman, and the CW has dropped Girlfriends and Aliens In America. Britney Spears' well-publicized cameos on How I Met Your Mother is apparently a big reason for the show's renewal, and among the shows reprieved for another year are titles like Boston Legal, Rules Of Engagement, The New Adventures Of Old Christine and According To Jim, which is proof of life after death, if nothing else.

Rick McGinnis writes about music, movies, books and television, but not opera. He walked 47 miles of barbed wire and has a cobra snake for a necktie.

Seacrest to host Momma's Boy

Seacrest

NEW SERIES

Mothers will get to choose brides for their sons on a new reality series from NBC and American Idol host Ryan Seacrest.

In Momma's Boy, a group of "controlling mothers," their eligible "complacent sons" and several brides-to-be live together under one roof. Some of the potential brides are "nice girls" while others, as the press release states, "might not be as appealing to the mothers."

Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom

Indy (Harrison Ford) is back in the 1984 sequel to "Raiders of the Lost Ark." This time, he's in search of mythical stones that are the source of a village's prosperity. Accompanying him in his quest is a pint-sized kid (Ke Huy Quan, "The Goonies") with a bad case of hero worship and a nightclub singer (Kate Capshaw) who screams at everything. Amrish Puri co-stars as the hairless leader of a blood-thirsty cult. 8 PM on CICT

Jerusalem 1948: A War From Three Sides

In 1947, all heck broke loose — well, more heck, anyway. That's when the U.N. decided to break Palestine into one Jewish state and one Arab state, with Jerusalem being an international zone. What happened instead was a bitter battle for the holy city. The seige eventually ended in 1948, and Israel became a reality. This documentary presents three views of the situation: British, Palestinian and Israeli. 3 PM on HIST Wedding bells for Cynthia?

Sex And The City: The Movie star Cynthia Nixon wants to wed her partner Christine Marinoni – because gay weddings are “rebellious,” imdb.com reports. The actress began dating Marinoni in 2004, and rumours surfaced last month the pair would marry later this year in a low key ceremony. But Nixon, 42, admits she’s never been keen on marriage in the past – although she would consider wedding Marinoni because it would be an act of rebellion. She says, “It (marriage) is something my girlfriend is interested in and it was not something my boyfriend (Danny Mozer, with whom she split after 15 years together) ever was. I think that to get married to her would be a little act of rebellion. It’s like if you’ve never had the vote and then you get it you’re going to run out there and vote. I always avoided marriage in the past and was very wary of it. I felt like it was potentially a trap. People sometimes want the party, the gifts, and the public celebration of this big love – they’re excited about that rather than the life commitment. So I always stayed clear of it.”

Beyoncé’s weight gain spurs baby rumours

Beyoncé Knowles, who still won’t confirm her April 4 wedding to Jay-Z, is also keeping quiet about whether or not she is pregnant, PageSix.com reports.

Friends of the tight-lipped newlyweds say the songbird is expecting the couple’s first child. “She has gained a lot of pregnancy weight,” a source said.

A rep for Knowles said, “I don’t know if she’s pregnant. Let me perform an ultrasound and get back to you.”

Ashlee, Pete to tie knot on Saturday

Ashlee Simpson and Pete Wentz will wed on Saturday, according to the latest U.S. reports, says imdb.com. The pop couple was rumoured to be planning a ceremony for this Friday, but now Us Weekly magazine claims Simpson will become Mrs. Wentz on Saturday. The location, time and all other details are being kept a closely-guarded secret. A source close to the pair tells the publication, “Proper invites have not been sent out but guests have been given a save-the-date notice.” A rehearsal dinner, for “family and close friends only,” will take place on Friday. The couple announced their engagement in April and Simpson is rumoured to be pregnant with her fiancé’s child.

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
